HEART DISEASE FIRST CAUSE MAINE DEATHS

Annual Campaign In Progress

Donald Christie Local Chairman

Ward W Whyte, State Chairman for the Maine Heart Association 1951 Heart Campaign, states that heart disease is the leading cause of death in the State of Maine.
In the 1951 campaign, conducted in the month of February, a goal of $80,000 is sought.

Mr Whyte stated that the Maine Heart Association campaign will mean more than just another campaign to the citizens of the State.
The money raised will be used to continue the services already started, such as establishing more cardiac clinics. There are clinics already in Portland, Bangor, Caribou and there will be on Feb. 14 another clinic opened in Lewiston. These are operated by known cardiologists in the State—men who are specialists in this field.

In discussing heart disease, Mr Whyte stated that it was no respect of class, color or creed, and that age was not a factor. Congenital malformations are evidenced at birth, and rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart constitute the leading fatal disease in young people between the ages of 5 and 19.
Nearly one out of every two deaths after the age of 45 is caused by heart disease. Mr Whyte stated:

Mr Whyte stated that 182,000,000 work days, or billions of dollars in productivity are lost each year because of cardiovascular diseases.
The term heart disease," said Mr Whyte, "covers a multitude of diseases. Many of these are unrelated, but all involve the circulation and include the heart and blood vessels. The three most common are rheumatic heart, which is caused by rheumatic fever, coronary heart disease caused by hardening and narrowing of the coronary arteries, and hypertensive heart disease resulting from high blood pressure."

Mr Whyte urged each and every community to do its proportional part, which is 10 cents per capita, toward this $80,000 goal. Placing this price tag on the heart program for the state, Mr Whyte stated that cardiologists were hopeful that they could do much to educate the citizens and more to alleviatthe great death toll in our State.

Donald M Christie has been named local chairman of this year's campaign. Collections will be made through the schools and contributions in the plastic heart coin collectors in stores. Individuals may also contribute by sending checks to the Maine Heart Association, to Mr Christie.

The Worthy Matron presented gifts to her officers and to the installing officers. The Star points then presented the Worthy Matron with a bouquet of flowers. Each of the Star points were presented a Colonial bouquet by the installing officers.

The next meeting will be March 7 and will be observed as Obligation Night.

Youngstown Educates
For Freedom

Recently it was my good fortune to see at first hand the results that may be achieved by an enlightened educational program in which parents, educators and business men join in transmitting to school youngsters a deep appreciation of American economic, social and political freedoms. Upon the induction of the organization of efforts of Youngstown, Ohio, and the Economic and Business Roundtable, I spent three days in the Youngstown district of the Mahoning Valley speaking to assemblies of high school students and their teachers. My total audience was 32,500.

One of the strongest barriers that could be erected against the growth of fascism in the years ahead will be a generation of young people who have been well educated in the true values of the American private enterprise system. The larger we are obliged to have government controls and citizen participation in the state-of-war emergency, the more important it is that our school young stars as well as their parents be imbued with unshakable faith in our institutions of freedom.

Appreciate American System

In the regular news media following basic and birth stories the citizens of our nation's several hundred thousand high school and college students in America and the free world of our privately operated educational system. But the world is changing and the educational world, one of the students and teachers of these 31 western states, is going to realize the big job of its life years. The Socialist planners with their continuing fight against us and their propaganda of state capitalist private enterprise would get ready to rule in the forthcoming educational area of the free world.

For our school associations, teachers and department heads of America to these young people goes an urgent appeal to use all educational and public programs begun there and a half prior to 1945. The planners have brought together to an educational international team the best people possible, including the agents. This, however, has not been done and the way with distaste. The brain power applied and the real work has been paid off. The educational programs are strengthening America and freedom.

Five Goals

The following program, it seems from the Bureau of Educational Information Institute and the Economic and Business Roundtable, the former is supposed to make the educational planning and action programs begin there and a half prior to 1945. The planners have brought together to an educational international team the best people possible, including the agents. This, however, has not been done and the way with distaste. The brain power applied and the real work has been paid off. The educational programs are strengthening America and freedom.

On March 1st to the public and especially of industry that productive capacity upon economic production. (a) Help the people and especially the young people realize that the need for job opportunities may be found at home; (b) Organize organizations of individual ownership and profits; (c) Present their demands; (d) Encourage establishing means of public and employee communication and education; (e) Encourage all able to work together with all interests in the cause.

Reward Others with Appreciation

ARTHUR E. ROBERTS, North Shaftesbury, Vermont, says that a remark was made to him one day that he will remember many years; that it will help him for many years. He has forgotten all the details but he is convinced that a certain associate of his named Bob is a very fine fellow. He says Bob can ask a favor of him any time and he will do his best to grant it.

Why all this excitement in the mental attitude of Arthur Roberts?

Just this:

There was a difficult situation to be handled with a customer of the firm, a certain Mr. Kane. He went to the above-mentioned friend Bob and asked for some information to pass on to Mr. Kane. When he wrote the letter, he had a copy made and sent it to Bob.

Shortly Bob called him on the telephone and said:

"Art, I just read the copy of your letter to Mr. Kane, and I want to say that I think you handled that situation admirably; that was a very fine letter."

When Arthur thanked Bob and added that he had only passed on the information Bob had furnished him, Bob replied, "No, you did far more than that. You and I both know that the letter you answered contained a suggestion both ridiculous and preposterous. But you straightened out the matter without making short feel like a darn fool."

Says Arthur Roberts: "I am for this appreciation stuff 100 per cent. Since a few words of praise can have such an effect upon me, I am resolved to give honest, sincere appreciation to others whenever opportunity arises."

THIS WEEK IN Washington

THIS SENATE SMALL BUSINESS Committee says that small business in the nation is fighting for its life, that inflation already has hurt many small firms and that government had better see to it that the survivors get a fair share of defense contracts.

As a result of several days of testimony, Senator John Sparkman of Alabama and Congressman Wright Patman of Texas, chairman, respectively, of the Senate and House small business committees, introduced identical bills calling for set-up of a small defense plants corporation with a revolving loan fund of $500,000,000 and a five-member board with more positive authority than was given the similar smaller war plants corporation during World War II. The bill would give the corporation power to assure small business a fair share of business from prime government contractors and at the same time give the corporation power to make contracts with the government and subcontract to small businesses.

Despite this upswing in government spending, the bureau of the budget analysis shows that in 196 different appropriations to be requested of Congress, including programs for which spending will be spread over several years, will amount to another $23,000,000 in new cash and obligation authority. Much of this sum will not be spent until 1953 and will therefore show up in the expenditure budget of that year.

General speaking, the congressmen generally approved the President's plan to enact a tax bill to raise some $16 billion more in new taxes on a pay-as-you-go basis.

There is a move underway in connection with price controls, to revise some of the provisions of the Bengal law affecting prices, for getting for them communities the foreign anti-inflationary policies of other countries, especially Germany. The

THE VIGILANTEs are coming back! And these vigilantes, instead of stringing up horse thieves, will give their attention to the Reds' saboteurs squads.

Consider the terrible handicap which the non-Communist nations will have to overcome when the Asiatic hordes start their invasion of the democratic world. Every Red agent in Europe and America will have his instructions; and there will scarcely be enough monkey-wrenches in existence to go around. In every industry, on every dock, in every ship there will be the terror squads of the Red command. How can all the secret service departments in Europe and America hope to apprehend these enemies before they have done their deadly work? And what devastating work they can do!

So some smart men, reportedly connected with foreign labor unions, are organizing internationally counter-terror squads to take care of situations which could log a war in its initial stage.

These vigilance committees are not going to wear kid gloves; but they won't have to go "outside the law" to accomplish their purposes. If a group of terrorists attempt to seize a ship on the high seas, vigilance group will have the legal right to protect the ship and themselves. If the terrorist attempt to wreck an industrial plant which is making implements for the defense of this country, a vigilance committee would have the legal right to stop them. Self-protection is the first law of nature and of the land.

According to a recent report from Paris, committees of vigilance have already been organized in France, Italy and Greece, and will be formed in Britain, Belgium, Holland, West Germany, Scandinavia, Israel, Turkey and Egypt. Nice work for labor! And let us hope they will start the same organizations here—and quickly. If the Kremlin knew that their subversive plans would misfire, it might go a long way toward altering their immediate plan to enslave the occidental world.

Approximately 70 percent of President Truman's $1 billion dollar budget will be spent for purposes of military service and international security in 1952. This would leave spending for all other government projects, including non-defense items, permanent and indefinite appropriations, mostly interest on the national debt, public assistance grants, veterans service and other fixed and continuing charges at $19,084,000,000, compared to $29,160,000,000 for the current fiscal year.

In addition actual appropriations to be requested of Congress, including programs for which spending will be spread over several years, will amount to another $23,000,000 in new cash and obligation authority. Much of this sum will not be spent until 1953 and will therefore show up in the expenditure budget of that year.

She is remembered by all who knew her as a tender devoted wife and mother, a friend faithful and sincere.

Good Night! dear one, we softly say

For we know she has finished her quest.

She has found the realm the weary seek,

God's home of Peace and Rest.

Put out the light! She needs not its glow

For her vision is Heavenly clear,

The angels sweet music we know is soft to her listening ear.

The years of pain are forgotten now.

And the longings for loved ones gone

For God has given her loved ones back

In the beautiful morning's dawn.

Over the meadows sweet and clear

The olden songs I seem to hear.

And all by myself I find the way

Back to each golden yesterday;

Faring in fancy until I stand

Grasping your ready friendly hand

Some times there comes at fancy's choice

The lilting cadence of your voice

Sometimes it's dim, sometimes it's clear

But I keep the music that I hear

All to myself, I hold and know

All of the days of long ago

Wonderful days when you and I

Owned all the sunshine in the sky

All by myself I think of you,

Think of the things we used to do

Old days come as old days will,

And again we climb the long high hill;

Ah! Memory brings the old days near...

—But YOU are gone, so Good Night! dear.

EMERGENCY RUN

LINES OF PAIN were erased from the perspiring red face as Mama removed the broken-down shoes from her swollen feet. "Ach, that is good," she grunted, writhing the cramped toes.

Since dawn, Mama had punished those aching extremities with the weight of her big body. She had cooked and scrubbed and joked heavily with the customers in the tiny restaurant.

Now, in the late afternoon, she had hoisted her bulk pantingly up the steep stairs to the small apartment where she and Papa lived the so brief hours of their personal lives. For an hour, Mama would pamper her weary body while Papa did his stint at the counter during the slack times.

Settling her aching figure into the protesting old rocker, Mama reached for the mending bag. "Tch, tch," holding a gaping-toed sock over a big red hand. "Papa, he is so hard on the things, for such a little man." She sighed affectionately as she reached for the darned cotton, from which she separated a convenient length with an experienced click of strong teeth.

Stretching and wriggling the unfeasted toes, Mama sang a little off-key while she ran the needle back and forth, cleverly weaving a new sock-toe for Papa.

This was a good life here in America. There were some who said it was too bad that she and Papa had to work so hard when they were so old. They made a joke, yes? It was good to work for themselves, to eat until their starved bellies balked. Papa was so thin, but there was red in his cheeks that had been so gray. He was such a sweet little man—clumsy with the knives—careless with the matches—but so good to her.

Mama stiffened in the creaking rocker. That sound she had never learned to take calmly. Since she had first been in this land, those screaming sirens and the flashing lights on the long white ambulance and the big red fire trucks had scared her. Before the day she had seen little Mrs. Macusso taken away in the awesome ambulance, she had shuddered and breathed a bit of a prayer when she heard those screaming hor-

SUCCESSFUL PARENTHOOD

By
MRS. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS
Associate Editor
Parents Magazine

NOW AND THEN we like to stop and contemplate the joyous experience of spending a day with a baby! If it's a young mother and a bouncy little boy we can look in on, there's no end to the fun. And it begins early, you may be sure. Maybe it seems a little too early when you first hear those happy squeaks from baby's bed which means that at least one member of the family is rarin' to go.

He can't wait to be dressed, as a nice, warm bathrobe is a most important part of his wardrobe. That and dry pants and he is ready for breakfast. It gives Mother an appetite, too, to see a healthy baby's relish of his food.

But we mustn't dawdle over breakfast for Johnny has a lot to do and he must get into his work clothes. Once-dressed he has a regular routine—he scatters clothespins and has ever so many pots and pans to take out of the cupboard and put back in again. Then he must help his mother with the housework, such as bed making, which affords a game of peekaboo with the blankets. The house straightened, it is time for Johnny's bath, and that is a riot of fun. It doesn't seem possible that they must do for their child that they don't give the little fellow half the chance he wants to pay them back.

Babies like to make their contribution to family happiness almost from the beginning. They know the value of their smiles, those ecstatic noises are for their benefit as much as for the pleasure he takes in being able to make them. So make baby feel his importance—your good care of him does this in part. But don't underestimate his loving efforts to take care of you too—ambassadors of good will are extra precious these days. And that's what a baby surely is,

That's the way it goes—all day long he is delighted with your company, and when you take him out in his carriage, squeals of pleasure are your reward. Then, somehow, when evening comes, he can put into his noisy greeting of his father an approximation of the love he has been showering on his mother all day. There's nothing calculating or sly about a baby—he puts everything he has into showing his approval of his parents. What if there are clothes to wash and meals to be prepared and money to be earned—this laughing child makes the work of the day recede in memory and only the joy remains.

Why do we bother to write all this, which everyone knows anyway? Because some parents lose sight of what their baby can bring them in the way of sheer fun. They concentrate so hard on what they must do for their child that they don't give the little fellow half the chance he wants to pay them back.

Nobody's Business

The interest of the Chamber of Commerce in the village's auto parking problem is a good sign. As many know, we have had a lot to say about law observance in this connection, and we still believe there is little excuse for the general disregard of the regulations and flagrant discourtesy practiced by many who know better.

During "rush" periods travel on Main Street is unsafe at normal speeds. The extreme congestion between the monument and the head of the street is not likely to improve, regardless of improved practices. There isn't space enough for shoppers and theatre-goers during the Saturday afternoon and evening rush. Off-street parking will help, also the willingness to walk a short distance.

During the wind-up of the police drive last week, people of a Massachusetts city were frightened and irritated by continued sounding of fire alarms and church bells. The same apprehension was felt in Bethel during the "Mothers March." We doubt if contributors were more generous because of the unannounced disturbance.
